Brief Introduction to the Keynote Speakers

Barbara Fraumeni

Barbara Fraumeni is a Special-term Professor at the Central University of Finance and Economics, a Senior Fellow at Hunan University in China, Professor Emerita of Public Policy at the Muskie School of Public Service, University of Southern Maine, Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research, United States, and a Research Fellow of the IZA Network, Germany. She is an authority on human capital (World Bank, UN, and OECD) and nonhuman capital, economic growth, productivity, non-market accounts, and public roads infrastructure. In 2021, the book Dr. Fraumeni edited and contributed to as an author: Measuring Human Capital, was published by Academic Press. She is a former program officer with the National Science Foundation and Chief Economist at the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis. While serving as Chief Economist at the Bureau of Economic Analysis, she was part of a team responsible for modifying the National Accounts to treat Research and Development as an investment and assess its contribution to economic growth. She has won CSWEP's Carolyn Shaw Bell award for advancing the status of women in the economics profession and a U.S. Department of Commerce Gold Medal for her innovative research treating R&D as investment in GDP.

Dr. Fraumeni did the pioneer work in developing the popular Jorgenson-Fraumeni (J-F) method of calculating human capital stock in 1989. Over the past three decades, the J-F method has become one of the most precise and widely used methods in constructing human capital accounts to date. She has been a leader of the "China Human Capital Measurement and Human Capital Index Project" funded by China National Natural Science Foundation and Central University of Finance and Economics, conducted by the China Center for Human Capital and Labor Market Research (CHLR). Dr. Fraumeni has led faculty members and graduate students at CHLR in creating China's first set of systematic and scientific measurements of human capital using the J-F approach and quantifying its distribution and dynamics.

Jack Hou

Jack W. Hou is Professor of Economics at California State University, Long Beach. He received his Ph.D. from Yale University in 1989. He was President of the Chinese Economists Society (CES) in 2007-08. He was President of the Western Social Science Association (USA) in 2010-11, and also an officer of the Western Economic Association (USA). He was the senior coeditor of the Contemporary Economic Policy (a publication of the Western Economic Association) till 2010, and was re-appointed as the Specialized Co-Editor of the Contemporary Economic Policy in 2014. He has served as an Associate Editor for Economic Modeling since 2018, and on the editorial board of numerous economic journals.

He has been a visiting professor at Purdue University, Soochow University (Taiwan), and UCLA. He has been a Research Fellow at the Teaching and Learning Institute (USA), and the China Enterprise Institute (Taiwan). He is a Visiting Professor at Huazhong University of Science and Technology, University Fellow Professor at Nankai University, Adjunct Chair Professor at Jinan University, among others.

Dr. Hou has been the keynote speaker (either at the opening ceremony or closing ceremony) at various conferences in the U.S., Germany, France, Czech Republic, Japan, and China. He has published extensively in refereed journals in North America, Europe, and in Asia; and contributed Chapters to many books. His research focuses on the Chinese Economy (Labor, Aging, Trade, and Political Economy), Labor Economics, International Trade/Finance, and Economic History. His most recent interest has shifted to environment, sustainability, and finance.

Tony Fang

Tony Fang is a full professor and the Stephen Jarislowsky Chair at Memorial University of Newfoundland. He is also the J. Robert Beyster Faculty Fellow at Rutgers University and sits on a World Bank's Expert Advisory Committee on Migration and Development. Previously he taught at York University in Toronto, I. H. Asper School of Business at University of Manitoba and Monash Business School in Melbourne, Australia. He served as the President of the Chinese Economists Society (2012-13) and was a visiting professor at Harvard University, NBER, and Wharton School of Business. Professor Fang received a PhD in Industrial Relations and Human Resource Management from the University of Toronto.

Dr. Fang has published in leading economics and management journals including Strategic Management Journal, Journal of World Business, International Journal of Human Resource Management, Canadian Journal of Economics, Canadian Public Policy, The World Economy, China Economic Review, Industrial and Labor Relations Review (Cornell), Industrial Relations (Berkeley), British Journal of Industrial Relations (LSE), and Relations Industrielles/Industrial Relations.
